A little about Sarah:

Sarah has been working with dogs in the realms of performance training and behavior solutions for over a decade. Canine. Her special area of interest has long been helping dog owners address behavioral concerns in their competition dogs. Reactivity, fear, anxiety, aggression, and problems with arousal are all major concerns for many competitors, and there is nothing Sarah loves more than helping her clients overcome these issues and succeed in their chosen arena. Sarah has a very popular podcast, Cog Dog Radio and is an instructor for the Fenzi Dog Sports Academy online school. She has competed in agility and obedience for the past 15 years with her border collies.

Your dog doesn't have to hate the vet.

Or the groomer. Or handling by you, for that matter.

Yes, we have to do uncomfortable stuff to our dogs. That's life. Most dogs tolerate nail trims and vaccines, but not all of them do. Some dogs are so overtaken with fear or anxiety when it comes to the veterinarian or the groomer that they may not always get the care they need.

The truth is it doesn't need to be this way. We can and should teach the animals in our care how to cooperate with husbandry and veterinary procedures. After all, the caretakers of other captive animals have been doing this for a long time. If handlers can teach a hyena to stand for a no-restraint blood draw, you can and should do the same for your beloved dog.

Sarah has been teaching Perfect Patients for about 5 years to rave reviews.

General outline of topics, all this and more:

- * Husbandry behaviors to help with vet care and grooming including two types of sustained targeting, stationing, and more.
- * Advancing these behaviors to be usable during blood draws and other procedures.
- * The YES signal and the NO signal; how to be sure you're never pushing your dog too far
- * Troubleshooting for common issues like toenail woes and established vet-fear.
- * Stress reduction techniques for dogs that are already upset about the vet or groomer.
- * Lots of hands-on practice and individualized feedback for working teams.

Strictly limited to 10 working teams. Only one dog will be on the floor working at a time.

Unlimited auditing space.

Non-Working dogs:

If you must bring a well-behaved dog, we will have comfortable crating space for them. It will be a lot of boring time in a crate, so if your dog(s) can stay comfortably at home that might be the best choice.

Food:

We will provide coffee, water, and plenty of snacks. There will be an hour lunch break each day for you to visit nearby restaurants or enjoy your home-packed lunch.
